Fez on the other hand, is hilly, the souks and old city are a series of enclosed, narrow walkways. It is hard to grasp how large it is as you walk around as you never can see much of it at a time. There are still a lot of families living within the old city of Fez, and life continues much as it has for centuries.

While living and teaching in Turkey for several years, Jeremy Seals developed an obsession for the fez, a hat he believes has come to symbolize the soul of the country. Through interviews with villagers and historical essays, Seals chronicles his journey through Turkey, to areas both metropolitan and remote, to find the heart of the country as embodied by its national head gear.

So I decompiled FEZ.exe and found codes that only work when you're standing in the heart room beyond the 64 cube door... You actually enter the codes in the menu screen —there's a separate code for both the letters and numbers artifacts. When you do both, the heart disintegrates, and the game does a faux-reboot!

There are only three collectible Heart Cubes in FEZ, one in the Observatory, another in the Metatron Room, and another one in the Monolith Room. There is a non-collectible Heart Cube (known by fans as the Love Cube) in the Temple of Love that only appears in when the previously mentioned three Heart Cubes have been collected. Entering a certain code will make it disappear, and restart the game.
